Biden's Transition Team Protests Pentagon's Halt in Briefings

Jennifer Epstein and Peter Martin

President-elect Joe Biden's transition team criticized what acting defense secretary Christopher Miller called "a holiday pause" in briefings to prepare for the new administration.

The halt, announced on Friday, came after the Defense Department said it was cooperating fully in the delayed transition underway across the federal government with just over a month before Biden's inauguration on January 20.

"We were concerned to learn this week about an abrupt halt in cooperation," Yohannes Abraham, a Biden spokesman, said at a briefing on Friday. He said the move reflected "isolated resistance in some quarters, including from political appointees within the Department of Defense."

In a statement, Miller described the halt in cooperation as having been "mutually agreed upon," but Abraham said there was no such agreement. Axios, which reported on the move earlier, cited a defense official it didn't identify as saying workers were feeling overwhelmed by the number of meetings.

When asked if the Pentagon was not being truthful in claiming a mutual agreement, transition spokeswoman Jen Psaki replied, "I don't think we need to communicate that. I think you can make your own judgments."

“As of today, we have supported 139 interview sessions, more than 200 DoD personnel, 161 requests for information, and disclosed thousands of pages of non-public and classified documents, exceeding prior transitions,” Miller said in his statement. “At no time has the department canceled or declined any interview.”

President Donald Trump named Miller and other loyalists to top acting Defense Department jobs after firing Defense Secretary Mark Esper last month.

“No department is more pivotal to our national security than the Department of Defense, and a failure to work together could have consequences well beyond January,” Abrahams said, while acknowledging “constructive cooperation within many departments and agencies.”

Xi Jinping Vows “Peaceful Reunification” with Taiwan

'The complete reunification of our country must be and can be realized. Unification is the hope of all Chinese people. If China can be unified, all Chinese will enjoy a happy life. If China can't unify, everyone will suffer. Taiwan independence is the greatest obstacle to national rejuvenation and a serious hidden danger to national rejuvenation. Those who forget their heritage betray their motherland and seek to spit the country, will come to no good and they will be spurned by the people and condemned by history.'

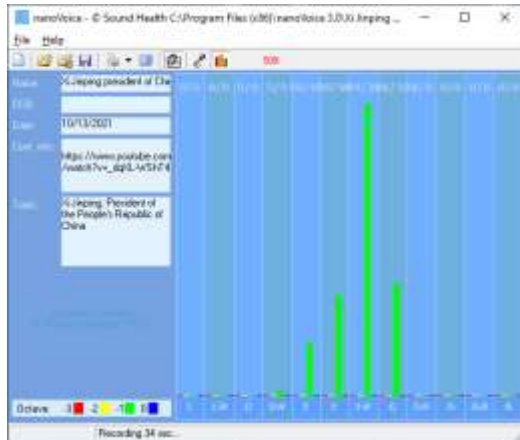

'The Taiwan question is purely China's internal affair. We will not tolerate any outside interference. Nobody should underestimate the firm will steadfast determination and powerful ability of the Chinese people to defend our national sovereignty and territorial integrity.'

This vocal print confirms Xi's warning to the United States and Biden Administration to stand down and let it happen.

Recently we compared President Biden's voice print against China's president Xi's to discover that they were very similar, meaning they were following a similar path to life's accomplishments.

We take that a step further to show that Liz Chaney's vocal print, concerning the farce on January 6, is even more like Xi's vocal print except Xi knows more and has access to more information about the situation. He sees the outcomes as real.

Chaney - only knows control through words of physical control

XI – control through words leading to a plan

Missing Notes

You have no hits for the notes of: G, A, B. Either you did not take enough samples (100-500 is usually best) or your subject matter did not include thoughts or topics that would involve these notes. See the Note Correlate Chart that appears on the Cover Page for more explanation.

Points of Importance, Attention and Consequence

You can use words to persuade the minds of others. If you ever had to lie to see justice done, you would do it, but your sense of justice does not always jive with the law. Using vocal expressions to misdirect a query is easy for you. You can use the high or low of your voice to give people direction as to how to treat you. You can convey a great variety of expressions using vocal nuance instead of words. You push yourself and others to finish the job. You love new ideas that mean you can have a project to work on. A sense of belonging is important to you. You plan well and want to see to it that your plans are carried out. It is easy for you to see the faults in others but don't always know how to get your point across politely. You expect others to take your suggestions seriously and gracefully. Nice things appeal to you and you are not averse to working hard to obtain them. Your highest note deals with expression through words both written and oral. The world of creative self-expression resides with this note. Your highest note is associated with the expression of duty to work and accomplishment. The ability to see the flaws in a plan and make it right resides with this note. Your highest note is associated with the expression and integration of appropriate perception and action. The ability to assess a situation quickly resides with this note.

Your ability to just "kick back" can cause stress for those around you. Some days it just feels good to sit back and do nothing. Having someone help you get started gets the job done faster. Sometimes you think you might as well be invisible when you spend your energy to help others because they don't seem to be listening at the moment. You want to do something about the mess the world is in but just don't seem to have the energy. Your leadership ability is hampered by lack of opportunity. You sometimes depend on others to support your place in the world. You can see how a situation needs to play out but you don't want to seem interfering. You don't always express your sense of confusion to the appropriate person when others attempt to deal with you inappropriately.

Points of Communication, Complications and Complaints

You can convince others with words - spoken and written. You can use words very creatively. You can inspire people using stories and demonstrations. You can think well and spontaneously when the need arises. You can change mental direction in a heartbeat.

You can push yourself to get things done. Creating new projects from the ideas you generate is rewarding. You take pleasure in changing things for the better.

You can plan for yourself and others. You can easily show others how to put a plan together. You can get satisfaction out of being able to find and correct mistakes.

You plan to get things organized as soon as you finish doing what's important. You know how you want things to look, but sometimes don't have the energy/enthusiasm to make it so. Too much energy is spent taking care of other people's issues/things.

You like to contemplate an issue before you speak up. You are sometimes reluctant to take the lead. You have good ideas but are sometimes reluctant to speak up. You like the idea of leadership but sometimes take on more than you expected to contribute.

You don't always know how to fight back to secure what is properly your due. It is hard for you to understand why people take your peaceful nature as being an easy target. As long as a rule doesn't pertain to you or yours personally, you don't often bother to object. You very much appreciate those who come to your verbal rescue.

Points of Cooperation, Learning, Opportunity and Growth

You have a low tolerance for meaningless conversation. You have lots of ideas but prefer to keep them to yourself until you have worked them out completely. Even when you know someone is lying you feel uncomfortable confronting them. You would like the world to be a fair place without the need for arguments.

You want it done right the first time. You can see what won't work when others present you with a plan. You like verbal excitement via words and music.

You have good intention about bringing your plans to fruition. You seem disorganized to the casual onlooker. You would like more options about your physical surroundings.

Spiritual justice is important to you. The idea that people choose their own lessons and punishment is valid for you. You work toward healing the gap between spiritual law and man's law. Your physical health is closely related to your spiritual health. What you want to do and what you feel obligated to do is often in conflict.

Stress can literally take your breath away. You tend to promise more than you have time to deliver. You don't always have the energy to carry out what you intended to do. You can get excited when you talk about an idea but can easily lose interest if you already know the outcome.

The balance of pride and a love of humanity keeps you committed and busier than you would like. You can lose interest in a project without warning. You are likely to be put into a position to require others to finish projects because you spread yourself too thin.

You can easily use self-talk as a way of self-healing. You would like to be appreciated but often feel awkward handling the attention. You sometimes know the right solutions before you hear all of the facts. You dislike being interrupted when you are trying to concentrate or explain. It is often hard to get going in the morning.

You have no hits for the notes of: C, C#, D, A, A#, B. Either you did not take enough samples (100-500 is usually best) or your subject matter did not include thoughts or topics that would involve these notes. See the Note Correlate Chart that appears on the Cover Page for more explanation.

Points of Importance, Attention and Consequence

Your stamina to get things accomplished is admirable. You push yourself and others to finish the job. You love new ideas that mean you can have a project to work on. If you ever had to lie to see justice done, you would do it, but your sense of justice does not always jive with the law.

Your highest note is associated with the expression of what you consider to be your physical domain. Having dominion over your physical environment resides with this note. Your highest note is associated with the expression of duty to work and accomplishment. The ability to see the flaws in a plan and make it right resides with this note. Your highest note deals with expression through words, both written and oral. The world of creative self-expression resides with this note.

Having someone help you get started gets the job done faster. You may be caught once in a situation, but you aren't often caught twice without a proper answer.

Points of Communication, Complications and Complaints

You like your working environment to be efficient with things readily available. You take pleasure in changing things for the better. You can get satisfaction out of being able to help others find and correct mistakes.

You know how you want things to look but sometimes don't have the energy to make it so. You wish for the best which sometimes leads to statements of hope instead of statements of fact.

Now take the information about the words of a Chinese professor, who says China controls Biden but wants Trump out because they cannot control him.

<https://video.foxnews.com/v/6214769762001#sp=show-clips>

Statement about Trump is at 9:09 mark in the video

The Chinese government has removed this video. This copy is from the Tucker Carlson show, with quite insightful commentary.

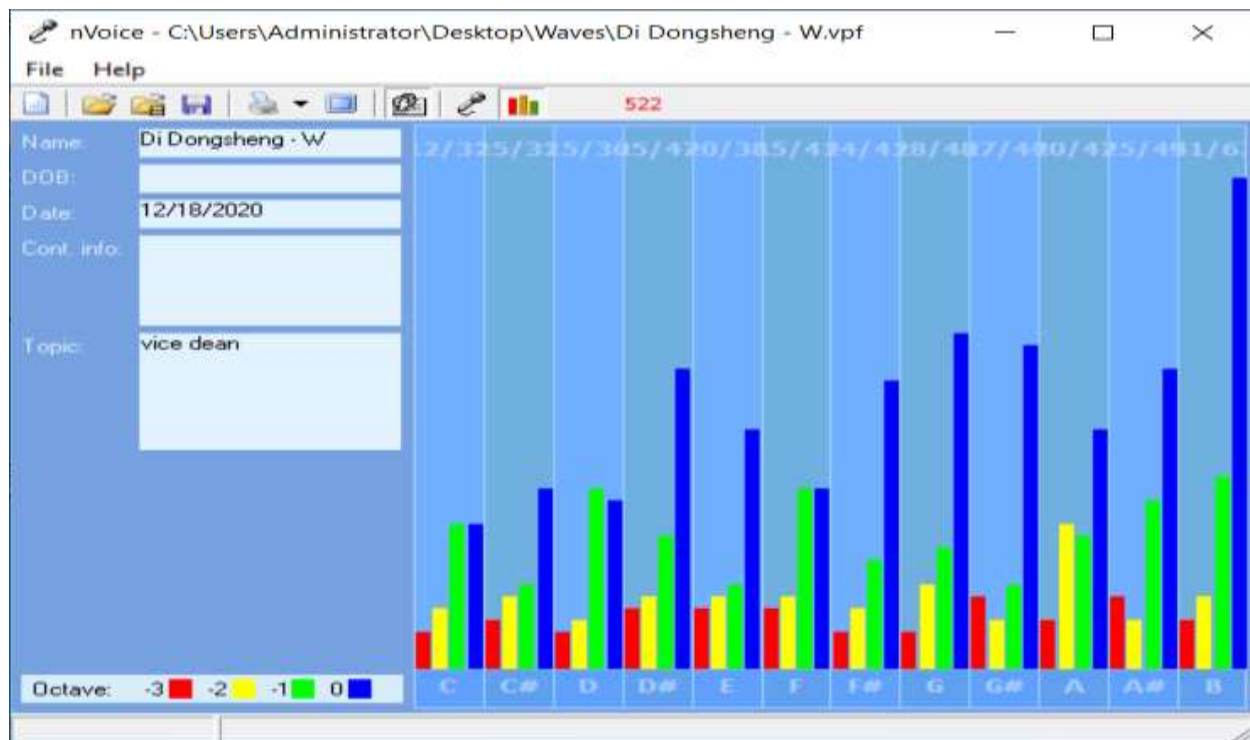

The speech by Di Dongsheng, a professor of international relations at Renmin University, was delivered in November and boosted Monday after Fox News host Tucker Carlson talked about the remarks and Trump tweeted a clip. Di, who was speaking at an annual event hosted by the nationalistic Chinese website Guan Video, bragged about Beijing's sway over Wall Street and Biden's son Hunter and said: "Biden is back! Our old game is back."

Carlson seized on the comments on his Monday broadcast as proof that U.S. elites have been working on behalf of China. By Thursday, video of the talk had been removed from Chinese social media and video platforms.

Di said that China "used to know people at the top" in the U.S. financial world. "We have a network of 'China's old friends' on Wall Street, who had access and control over the D.C. politicians," Di said, adding that those connections failed to help during the trade war because "Wall Street can't control Trump."

Using his wave file indicates that his speech is designed to evoke an emotional response “for the people” for a physical action. The action is a plan designed to manipulate the people through information. This is not the intellectual endeavor that you would expect from an academic presentation. The note of “E” – words - dominates.

The most active octave is control using words, with an omnipotent perspective deal with control of information.

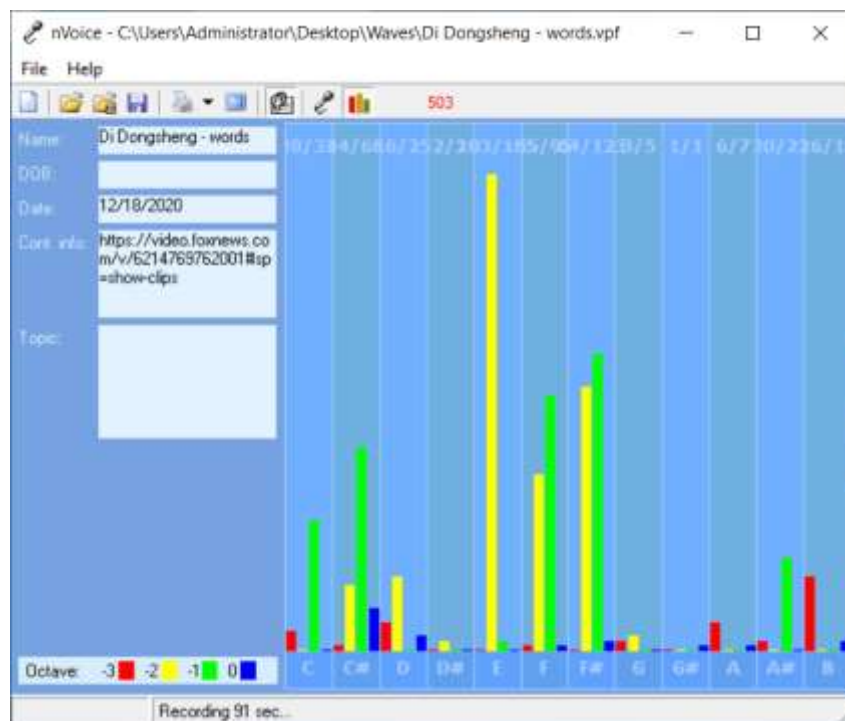

Weakness: not knowing what the physical plans really are or conceiving them, with very little self-esteem. Emotion is used to deliver a multilayered, well-thought-out plan.

Abundance of naïveté. He is not the leader here and does not know how he fits into the plan or even what the entire plan is.

Thinks he somehow has a right to support this plan by concentrating on control issues.

Mental words dealing with plans, justice, ego and physical dominance.

The incident illustrates the difficulty Biden faces crafting a China policy after months of efforts by Trump and his supporters to paint the former vice president as soft on Beijing. Such comments by a high-profile Chinese academic could add to the pressure on the incoming administration to take a harder line.

Di suggested that Biden's son Hunter was a path to influence over the incoming president, feeding a narrative pushed by Trump and his supporters during the campaign. "We just need to toss out some olive branch to signal some good will," Di said.

Guan Video caters to young Chinese nationalists with programs on politics and foreign affairs that are widely watched on Chinese social media platforms. Global Times Editor-in-Chief Hu Xijin, who also spoke at the Guan Video event, dismissed Di's claims, commenting multiple times on Trump's tweet.

"There are some Chinese scholars who like to brag and spice up tales about their ties with high-level figures to seek attention and promote oneself," he wrote. "It's unserious to judge China-U.S. relations with stories told by these kinds of people."

The dustup comes after Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi, addressing the U.S.-China Business Council last week, said the world's two biggest economies needed to work together to create a favorable atmosphere for public opinions on bilateral ties.

They need to "eliminate the soil of lies and disinformation" to "form a correct understanding of China-U.S. relations," Wang said.

“Bring it on,” Liz States as She Plans to Be the Next Republican Presidential Candidate

Chaney’s vocal print indicates that she has joined the God mind perspective like Biden.

Lacks reality. Majority of her energy in fantasy, especially management and carrying out a plan.

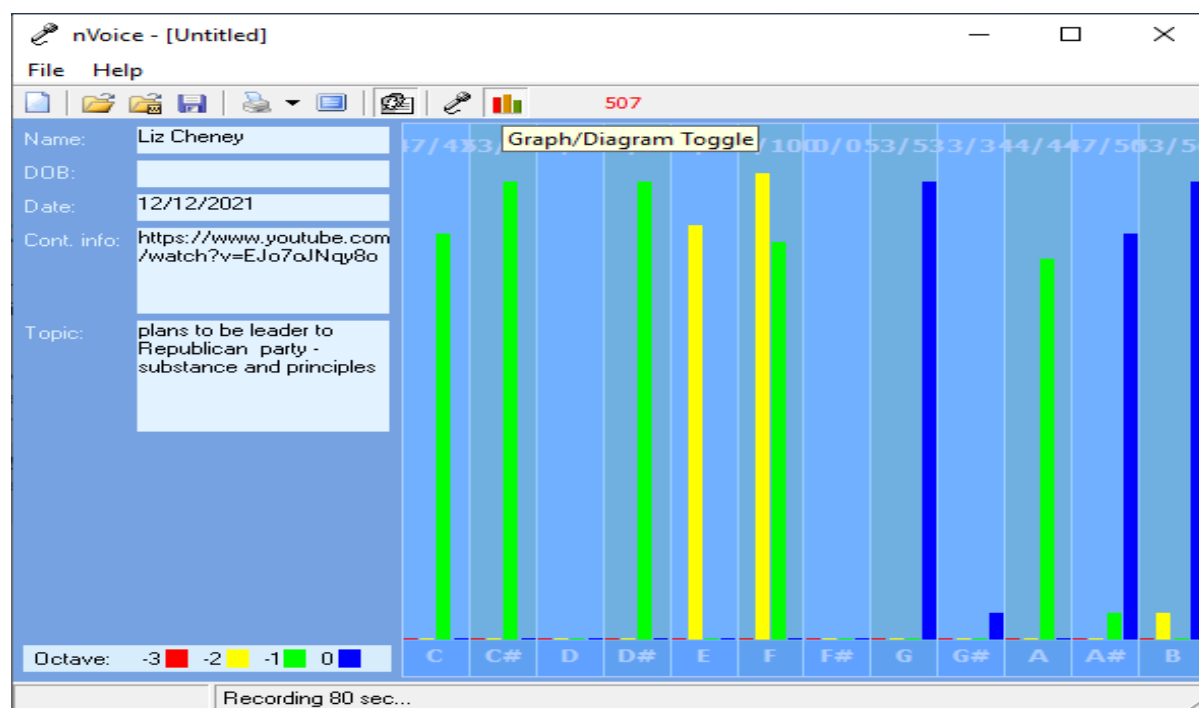

Lots of feelings of omnipotence, especially control of information and revenge.

No concern for future; wants to stir the pot.

Solid work ethic but distorted motivation.

Seems that she sneered throughout the interview.

Vengeful? Can be intense!*

Points of Importance, Attention and Consequence

You plan well and want to see to it that your plans are carried out. It is easy for you to see the faults in others but don't always know how to get your point across politely. You expect others to take your suggestions seriously and gracefully.

Nice things appeal to you, and you are not averse to working hard to obtain them. You know where your physical things are located even when others can't understand your system. You like control of your physical environment. Your stamina to get things accomplished is admirable. You appreciate others who recognize your ability to be of service. You have high ideas and expect the same of others. Sometimes there is conflict between your inner ideals and what you want others to think of you. Your highest note is associated with the expression and integration of appropriate perception and action. The ability to assess a situation quickly resides with this note. Your highest note is associated with the expression of what you consider to be your physical domain. Having dominion over your physical environment resides with this note. Your highest note is associated with the expression of service to humanity and human spirit. Your feelings and desire to help others resides with this note.

Your ability to just "kick back" can cause stress for those around you. Some days it just feels good to sit back and do nothing. Having someone help you get started gets the job done faster. Being able to prioritize what needs to be done emotionally is not always easy for you. You can just shut down when you are overwhelmed. Your metabolism shows be a weak point in your vocal print. Sometimes you think you might as well be invisible when you spend your energy to help others because they don't seem to be listening at the moment. You want to do something about the mess the world is in but just don't seem to have the energy. Your leadership ability is hampered by lack of opportunity.

Points of Communication, Complications and Complaints

You can plan for yourself and others. You can easily show others how to put a plan together. You can get satisfaction out of being able to find and correct mistakes.

Being appreciated is especially important to you. You sometimes help others to the detriment of yourself. Your emotions run strong and can influence your health.

Your standards for emotional trust are high. You understand intellectually that trust should be earned but often give trust without reservation. You think about how your words will be received before you speak. You understand that stubbornness of thought exhibited by others is likely a lack of having all of the appropriate information about the subject. You can see through people who are trying to convince you that wrong is right. You work well behind the scenes but you expect to be compensated for a job well done, not necessarily in money but in appreciation.

You plan to get things organized as soon as you finish doing what's important. You know how you want things to look but sometimes don't have the energy/enthusiasm to make it so. Too much energy is spent taking care of other people's issues/things.

Points of Cooperation, Learning, Opportunity and Growth

You have a tendency to fight authority, particularly when you perceive that others are being threatened. You work hard to see that justice is instilled in those around you. You can become physically weak when people take advantage of you but only after you have taken care of the situation. You love justice and truth and work hard to see that these qualities are upheld. You love a happy ending that includes justice, physical restitution and emotional fulfillment.

You love truth and justice and try hard to see that people are compensated for their efforts. You love a happy ending and like to think the world is fair and balanced. Your strong sense of justice needs a cause/outlet. You are more likely to fight for the rights of others than for yourself.

You dislike being accused of something you did not do because it hurts your spirit. When you are satisfied with your decision, you no longer need to talk about it. You can influence others from a spiritual perspective.

You can perceive what others may be thinking and can use it to your benefit. Your verbal skills make you a good trainer. You can play word games. You would make a good mediator.

Getting to the core of what you really believe to be the right way of life is important to you. There are times when you disregard your own needs in order to help others. It is important to you that you make a difference in the lives of others to help them move toward a more unselfish life. You are a natural teacher by example. You have a patient outlook on life and can work toward a specific goal without regard for your own needs.

You are willing to spend a lot of your time making sure that others learn about integrity, wisdom and responsibility. You challenge yourself much more than others challenge you. You love seeing all the pieces fall together to make it all work.

You like to plan by talking about how things are to be done. Discussions about people's motives are a source of inspiration. You like to be creative but like to try your ideas out with someone you trust first. You are tolerant of long-winded people because you can see through their pretense to their needs. Your self-esteem comes from what you accomplish. You don't tolerate fools who repeat information they can't defend. [Similar to Barack Obama in her ability to use people's motives to control them]

Spiritual laws and what's right are more important than man's laws. Protecting people's feelings is very important to you. Your ability to help others through emotional turmoil is admirable.

Your sense of self-power is combined with a strong sense of justice. You will help once but insist that people learn to help themselves. Playing emotional games distresses you.

You are often too busy to think about or plan for the unexpected. Carrying the burden of thinking about it all and doing it all at the same time is heavy. Stress about getting things done can keep you from having the energy to complete the task.

You have a tendency to think you ought to fight authority to prove personal points of honor even when it costs you. Joining a group that thinks like you do will help bring justice to a situation. Your own self-approval issues can get in the way of expressing your opinions that need to be heard. You can be quick to judge before you gather all the pertinent facts. In most cases it is a lack of understanding your motivations.

You have good intention about bringing your plans to fruition. You seem disorganized to the casual onlooker. You would like more options about your physical surroundings.

Spiritual justice is important to you. The idea that people choose their own lessons and punishment is valid for you. You work toward healing the gap between spiritual law and man's law. Your physical health is closely related to your spiritual health. What you want to do and what you feel obligated to do are often in conflict.

Being aware of how others will take what you say is of concern to you. You have a knack for teaching by demonstration. You can easily take charge of a physical situation using words.

Doing for others gives you satisfaction. A balance between giving and receiving is not always easy for you. You often give more than you receive in return.

You plan well but are sometimes short on the follow-through because there just doesn't seem to be enough time to get it all done. Cooperation is essential to accomplish all that you conceive. You limit yourself with impatience when others get in the way of your plans.

You can easily use self-talk as a way of self-healing. You would like to be appreciated but often feel awkward handling the attention. You sometimes know the right solutions before you hear all of the facts. You dislike being interrupted when you are trying to concentrate or explain. It is often hard to get going in the morning.

You strive to bring together what others think of you with what you think of yourself. You can second guess yourself in a heartbeat. You let others convince you that your feelings are in error because you care about them and their opinions.
